The New Title IX Regulations: Understanding Risk Assessment, Threat Assessment & Emergency Removal

Tuesday, March 2 ~ 3:00-4:15pm (Eastern)

Once the live date has passed, this training will be available on demand.

Overview

On August 14th, 2020, The Department of Education (ED) Office for Civil Rights (OCR) expected compliance with the new Title IX federal regs by institutions that receive federal funds.

In addition to the many changes published in the new regs: in definitions; the way institutions must provide notifications to the parties; equitable interaction with parties as well as any advisors of choice during the process; conducting live hearing or hearings (K-12); and offer supportive measure to both parties before, during or after the filing of a formal complaint, to name a few. One requirement that worried many was the requirement that included an “emergency removal” when an “immediate threat” has been determined.

But what exactly does that mean? Who makes those determinations? What information should be considered? Is the Title IX team involved? Or are they required to rely solely on others to decide to remain “unbiased” and not pose a “conflict of interest?” Must a campus threat assessment team make the decision? What if the campus does not have a threat assessment team or function yet? How will the “immediate threat” determination be made?

During this presentation, the speaker will address these questions and more regarding the “emergency removal” provision under the new Title IX regs.

Objectives:

- Discuss regulation language specific to “emergency removal”
- Attain necessary information regarding threat teams and their function on institutions
- Learn the difference between a “risk assessment” and a “threat assessment”
- Analyze “immediate threat” requirement
- Discuss alternate ways to appropriately address the “emergency removal” requirement under Title IX
